Gideon is the owner of GIDCO Ag. Design & Consulting, a diverse agriculture business that has been involved in farming and protective structures for 35 years. He has consulted on and implemented all aspects of the business from initial land development through the actual farming, including computer controlled drip irrigation systems and sophisticated protective structures. His current activities focus on crucial areas of this high-tech, high-cash crop business. His extensive farming background enables him to diagnose and apply the best solution for your growing needs.

Gideon was born in Sweden and grew up on a Kibbutz in Israel. He lived in Israel and Holland before moving to California, USA in 1983.
